From: Jiro Yamamoto
 To: James Smith
 Subject: Next Friday
 Date: February 5th

 Hello. Thanks for inviting me to your party the other night. I had a very enjoyable evening. The meat pie you made was very good, and I would like to eat it again. By the way, I left my black hat at your house. May I come to your house next Friday to pick it up?
 See you,
 Jiro

From: James Smith
 To: Jiro Yamamoto
 Subject: You're welcome!
 Date: February 6th

 Thanks for the email. I'm so glad that you enjoyed the party. Making a meat pie is easy, and I will teach you how to make one next time.
 Hanako made a mistake. She took your black hat home with her after the party. She noticed it at her home earlier and called me. She says she will bring it to my house this afternoon. Please come to my house next Friday to collect it and take it home with you. What time can you come? I'll make a cake then, and we can eat it together.
 Take care,
 James

From: Jiro Yamamoto
 To: James Smith
 Subject: Looking forward to it!
 Date: February 6th

 Thanks for replying. Yes, that black hat is mine. I am glad the hat is not lost. I will come to your house next Friday at 3:00 p.m. I am looking forward to eating the cake that you made for me.
 See you then,
 Jiro

No.12 Why did Jiro send the first email to James?

- A) Because he wanted James to teach him how to make meat pies.
- B) Because he thought he left his hat at James's house.
- C) Because he wanted to have cake with James.
- D) Because Hanako called him.

No.13 Why did Hanako call James?

- A) Because she took Jiro's hat home.
- B) Because she bought James a black hat.
- C) Because she knows how to make cakes.
- D) Because Jiro took her black hat home.

Urashima Taro

Do you know the story of “Urashima Taro” who opens a tamatebako and becomes an old man? This story is known to almost all children in Japan. Now, in many books, the story ends when Urashima Taro opens the tamatebako which he is *not supposed to open, and he becomes an old man. However, in the old book, there is a *continuation of the story. According to the old book, after Urashima Taro becomes an old man, he becomes a *crane. Then he flies away to a mountain. There is a turtle that Urashima Taro saves. The turtle is in fact the princess who welcomed Urashima Taro to her castle, Ryugujyo. After arriving at the mountain, the crane and the turtle get married. In some *folktales, the stories are often changed for children. So, the original stories are sometimes different from the stories that are known today.

In Japan, cranes and turtles are considered lucky animals. It is said that cranes live for 1,000 years, and turtles live for 10,000 years. They are symbols of *longevity. Some researchers believe that the *legend of Urashima Taro caused people to think of the crane and turtle as lucky animals in Japan.

3 ライティングテスト (16点)

I like playing sports better than listening to music. First, playing sports is fun because I can play with my friends.

When we play games like dodgeball, it makes me feel happy.

Second, sports help me stay healthy. When I play sports, it helps my muscles to be strong. Music is nice too, but playing sports is more exciting for me, so I enjoy playing sports more than listening to music.
